

Calling all Salmon Watchers!

It's almost that time of year again, when salmon make their way home to spawn and renew their life cycle. The more eyes watching, the better!

Our Salmon Watchers spend 15 minutes twice a week during the Fall observing a stream or lake shore in the greater Lake Washington Watershed, counting the returning salmon. The data collected are used by agencies and groups working to help restore endangered salmon runs and improve habitat for all salmon. Your work as a Salmon Watcher is invaluable!

How can I become a Salmon Watcher?

Attend one of several classroom trainings to learn about salmon identification. Choose a place to watch from among hundreds of established sites. No experience necessary.

Attend a training near you! All trainings are 7-9 p.m.

Thursday, September 10, Bellevue City Hall, Bellevue

Tuesday, September 15, Renton Community Center, Renton

Thursday, September 17, Woodinville City Hall, Woodinville

Tuesday, September 29, Good Shepherd Center, Seattle

